

FOLK MAGAZINE N 5

One of the task of the project was to tell about a legend in Trapani . I was very involved in this strange legend that I want to tell you. It isn't sure it's a legend or a real story. I liked it ,so much and I drew some comics about it. This is the story :

SERISSO PIRATE

A story of love and betrayal happened in Trapani in the fifteenth century. In Trapani there is a street dedicated to this legend: Serisso Street. A French woman, Madame Serisso, got married with a Turkish Pirate that was called Serisso. When he left for travelling on Mediterranean Sea to find out and burgle some ships, Madame Serisso betrayed him, falling in love with a handsome slave and escaped with him.....When the Pirate came back he realized his wife's betrayal and left for Africa to look for Madame Serisso and the slave. He found them and cut their heads that were put in a big sack and brought to Italy. When he arrived at home he hung his wife's head outside their house to show the other people what it could happen when a wife betrays her husband.....

Didi Daidone D'Anna 3 L

